

Jessica Craven's statement:

As a resident of Mt. Washington for six years I feel it is high time I became a more active participant in my community. I have become interested in local politics since the November election, and feel that Neighborhood Council is a great place to start learning about local initiatives that can improve citizens' lives. I have a lot of energy, enjoy working with others, and cherish nothing more than the feeling that I am helping to make my small slice of the world a better place.

With a daughter at Mt. Washington Elementary, a home near Cleland Park, and a long history of progressive activism, I feel I'd be a great addition to your board. I do a lot of volunteering, both at MWE, for local political candidates, and for Indivisible groups. Joining your board feels like the next logical step, and I'd be honored if you'd consider having me.
